GOES TO DRIVE WAR AMBULANCE

Sails for France to Join American Hospital Corps. Formerly Visited District as Newspaper Correspondent.

William Buehler Seabrook, for many years a frequent visitor with relatives in Gettysburg, sailed to-day from New York on the liner L'Espagne for France to join the American Ambulance Corps. He is a son of W. L. Seabrook, of Westminster, and a grandson of William L. W. Seabrook, editor of the "American Sentinel", of that place, who has been quite ill. He spent several days this week with his parents before leaving for New York.

William B. Seabrook, the young man who is now leaving for France, is an accomplished French and Italian linguist and as an automobile driver he will be sent to the front to drive an ambulance car. He made a walking trip through France and Italy several years ago as correspondent for a Baltimore newspaper, covering much of the territory that is now a battleground.

Before going to Europe he was city editor of the Augusta, Ga., "Chronicle", and after his return a member of the Atlanta "Journal" staff until he resigned to form a partnership in the publicity and advertising business as the Lewis-Seabrook Company. He is a member of the Atlanta Rotary Club, the Capital City Club, and the Atlanta Athletic Association.

He goes to the front alone, but may be joined later in the summer by Mrs. Seabrook as a volunteer Red Cross nurse.

County Girl Rewarded

Miss Katherine Wolfe, a daughter of Mrs. Avilla Wolfe, who formerly resided near Ottumwa, has been decorated with the medal of the Service de Sante for faithfulness in the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris during the war. Miss Wolfe showed unusual skill in her profession shortly after the opening of the hospital and was placed in charge of the section in which soldiers suffering from jaw wounds were treated. Her work almost cost her eyesight but she has now recovered it fully and her friends have double cause for rejoicing in her good fortune.

FAIRFIELD

Fairfield--Miss Bess Cunningham has returned to her home after spending several weeks in Philadelphia.

Miss Blanche Culbertson and Miss Martha Withrow went as delegates from Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church to the missionary convention held in Waynesboro Thursday and Friday of this week.

Mrs. Harry Brown spent last week visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Deardorff, at Cashtown.

Miss Margaret Neely spent several days in Gettysburg as the guest of her sister, Mrs. John McIlhenny.

Mrs. W. K. Fleck and son, Murray, have returned home from a visit with Mrs. Fleck's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Sheads, in Gettysburg.

FREIGHT TROUBLES

Big Trains Difficult to Start and Some Loss Occurs.

In starting one of the large engines on the Western Maryland, which has stopped at the New Oxford station for orders Thursday, a draw head was pulled from one of the freight cars. The car was loaded with wheat and about a hundred bushels of grain was scattered along the tracks. The train was made up of about fifty cars. After switching the damaged car the train proceeded. Several days ago a similar accident occurred when in getting a start five draw heads were pulled from as many freight cars.

PAVEMENTS AT SIDE OF ROADS

New Idea Advanced by East Berlin Editor. Sees Way to Avoid Damage Suits in the Future. Dangerous Traveling.

It has remained for East Berlin to advance a brand new suggestion for the accommodation of the man who has either no money or no inclination to purchase an automobile, maintain a horse and buggy, or even to own a bicycle. The "News" of that place comes forward with the remarkable idea that side-walks should be laid along the country roads, calling attention to their construction as a probable way to avoid future damage suits. The issue of this week says:

"Work upon the highways, which cross in East Berlin, will be resumed under authority from the state. The suggestion is made broadcast, for there is probably no authority to receive it, direct, that side-walks should be provided along these state roads.

"It is very hard upon pedestrians, who must travel the middle of the road, to have to risk their lives upon their skill in escaping automobiles and every other kind of vehicles. The responsibility for damages for injuries occasioned by failure to provide suitable place for persons to walk in safety along the highways will have to be determined by the courts. As the damages will have to be paid by the people, eventually, we submit that it would be a good time for representatives of the people to give the subject due consideration.

"The common council of our borough is not officially concerned beyond the borough limits, but even within that short distance, they should see to it that sidewalks be provided."

Incidentally the "News" fails to mention the convenience such sidewalks would be to children going to and from school; but just how soon the State of William Penn will have sufficient funds on hand not only to build state roads but also to construct pavements at their sides is one of the most difficult things on which to make a forecast.

THURMONT IN TROUBLE

Bill Providing for Bond Issue for Streets was Killed.

Thurmont is in the throes of an agitation relative to ways and means of increasing the revenues of the town. According to information given at a recent town convention the electric light plant is badly in need of repairs. It has been estimated that the cost of these improvements will total about $1,500. These changes are necessary, in order that the plant may be successfully operated.

In addition there are repairs to be made to streets. The alleys and highways of that town, claim residents, are badly in need of an overhauling. Again, funds must be raised to retire some light plant bonds.

It was agreed at the convention of a few evenings ago that it would be necessary to raise the tax rate. Positive definite action is taken a public mass meeting will be called. Facts and figures showing the condition of the plant, of the streets and repairs needed will be made public. The exact amount needed to put the town in sound financial condition will be determined. This session will be held before May 1.

The bill which was sent to the Maryland Assembly, providing for the issuance of street improvement bonds has been killed. It is said that this measure had a double referendum clause attached to it.

There will be an election of town officials at Thurmont on April 10.

SNOW FALL HURTS SALE OF FLAGS

Those who Expected to Wage Campaign on Streets are Kept In-Doors by Unexpected Weather. Children Wear them

A happy thought prompted the distribution of the tiny Belgium flags in the schools of Gettysburg on Friday and saved the campaign from utter failure here to-day. The sudden return of wintry snows kept in-doors those who planned to take their posts on the street this morning and cut short the sales by personal solicitation. Comparatively few of the little pasteboards were sold in this way and the revenue was correspondingly curtailed.

The children, however, responded promptly when the plan was explained to them and scores of the girls and boys wore the brightly colored flags to-day. They bore in addition to the colors of Belgium the picture of the king of the country, a miniature "Stars and Stripes", and the inscription "Let us resolve that this nation shall not perish from the earth," the latter giving a touch of local interest to the tags.

Those who purchased the flags did not stop at the minimum of seven cents for which they were offered, and which was supposed to provide one meal for a destitute Belgian, but in nearly every case gave more. Some of the donations were very generous, so that it is believed, when the total is computed, Gettysburg will have given her share to the $1,000,000 contribution which it was hoped would be raised in the United States.

The flags here were distributed through members of Gettysburg Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. The national society, in a campaign lasting only two weeks, secured remarkable publicity and the event was observed in every town in the country where they had a chapter of the order and in many others where individual members took up the plan.

It is said that never before has there been such a wide-spread observance of a similar event.

TO BEAUTIFY ROAD

Illuminated Markers at Entrances to York on Lincoln Highway.

An advanced step in the development of the Lincoln Highway is brought to light by the announcement of the York Municipal Improvement Committee that illuminated and permanent markers superior to any that have yet been constructed on the route are to be put up at both entrances to that city on the Lincoln Highway. These will be of metal, set at right angles to the road, to be of real service and will undoubtedly reflect deserved credit on the city.

Through the Lincoln Highway Association the advice of the American Institute of Architects has been sought in order that the markers may be the finest and most artistic that it is possible to produce.

The American Institute of Architects extends gratuitous advice in instances of this kind to cities on the route of the Lincoln Highway in order that such constructive endeavors may be standardized and of value in keeping up with the high ideals back of the building of the road as a fitting memorial to Abraham Lincoln.

LOST BARN AND STOCK

A fire occurred on the farm of Robert Fickes, near Seven Valleys, at noon Friday, when a barn 20 x 30 feet was completely burned to the ground, having been started, it is conjectured, by sparks from an engine igniting the straw.

At the time of the fire Mr. Fickes was in Jefferson purchasing some coal for the engine used in sawing out timber for a new chicken house and hog stable. He did not arrive home until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time the barn had already been consumed and a portion of the house roof had become ignited. Only a small portion of the roof was damaged.

The cause of the fire, it is said, was flying sparks from a saw-mill engine, owned by George Messersmith, of Brodbeck's. Mr. Messersmith had been waiting for Fickes to return from Jefferson with coal for the engine, when the fire started. A kindling fire was made prior to placing coal in the engine. From this, it is said, the fire occurred.

Included in the loss were one cow, four hogs and one spring wagon, farming implements, and a number of sets of harness. Mr. Fickes had moved to this farm about three weeks ago, from Panther Hill. The fire is said to have started in the cattle stable.

SHORTAGE IN THE WHEAT CROP

This Year's Winter Wheat Yield will be Ten Per Cent below the Ten Year Average. Causes Assigned by Department.

A total production of 495,000,000 bushels of winter wheat is forecasted by the department of agriculture, basing its estimate on the condition of the crop April 1 and an assumption of average abandonment of acreage and average influences on the crop to harvest. That compares with 655,945,000 bushels, the estimated production in 1915, and 684,990,000 bushels in 1914.

The department of agriculture in a statement analyzing the report said: "The small production forecast is due partly to a reduction of about 11 per cent from the acreage of the preceding year and to a low condition of growth.

"The cause of the low condition was a wet, cold fall causing poor seed beds and poor start for wintering. Much of the crop was sown late, partly from necessity of the season and partly to avoid Hessian fly.

"Climatic conditions were harder on late than on early seeded wheat. The winter snow covering was lighter than usual, often lacking; sleet damaged fields bare of snow, considerable grain on lowlands was destroyed by flooding and the injury from freezing and thawing was greater than usual. The southern parts of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois and portions of Missouri were worst affected. The relatively best sections are the most eastern and far western states. The season is late and the real extent of damage is problematical in the northern portion of the belt."

EAST BERLIN

East Berlin--The children of the local schools observed "Clean-Up Day", last Thursday. The boys and girls, in groups, washed windows, cleaned the rooms and gathered together the rubbish. "Bird Day" was observed Friday and a number of trees were planted in honor of prominent men.

To Soften Pecan Shells.

Almost all housewives know how very hard it is to crack pecan nuts. Pour boiling water over the nuts and allow them to stand tightly covered for five or six hours. The nut meats may then be extracted easily without a trace of the bitter lining of the nut. Use nut crackers and crack tightly all around the nuts. The work is quickly done and is not at all like the old tedious process of picking out the meats from the dry nuts. The meats nearly always come out whole.

Save His Nerves.

To give the baby a quiet disposition, the first step is to keep him free from nerves. One mother accounted for her baby's peaceful frame of mind by saying that until he was three months old he was ignored! That seems absurd, yet there is an element of truth in it. A baby is an excitable little being. It wants to play and be played with, and it means real self-denial on the part of the household to refrain from kissing and cuddling and romping with the baby.—Ladies' World.

USE OF RAILROADS NOT GRANTED

Says No Permission Whatever Was Given to U. S.

DENY OUSTER NOTICE

Carranza Government Has Not Asked That the American Forces be Withdrawn.

Washington, April 8.—The following despatch from Queretaro, Mexico, the Carranza capital, was received here: "The Mexican government has not given the American government permission to use Mexican railways for any purpose whatever," said General Candido Aguilar, Mexican minister of foreign relations, after a meeting of the Carranza cabinet.

"At the cabinet meeting General Carranza and his advisers discussed the modifications suggested by the United States in the recent proposals for an agreement for crossing the frontier between the United States and Mexico by the armed forces of the respective governments.

"General Aguilar denied vigorously stories published in the American press to the effect that the Carranza government had given permission to the United States army forces to use Mexican railways for transportation of foodstuffs and supplies.

"Please rectify these false statements," said General Aguilar to the correspondent. "The Mexican government has not given the American government permission to use Mexican railways for any purpose whatever."

Recurring reports that the Carranza government had asked, formally or otherwise, for withdrawal of the American forces from Mexico, were disposed of by Secretary Lansing. He flatly denied such a request had been made, formally or by intimation or suggestion.

Belief in some quarters that Carranza had asked or soon would ask how much farther into Mexico the United States intended to send its soldiers, has been based on the belief that Villa's trail was getting "cold." Recent state department advices have given no clue to the outlaw's whereabouts. The last report several days ago had him near Satevo. Since then, department agents have reported inability to secure any further definite clue.

An encouraging feature of the campaign was found in reports to both state and war departments indicating actual co-operation between the American and de facto government troops. News from the border was to the effect that the Americans had penetrated as far south as Cieneguillas, near Satevo. A despatch from American Consul Letcher, at Chihuahua, through General Bell, reported an engagement at Cieneguillas on April 4 between Carranza troops under General Gavazos and fifty Villa bandits, in which the outlaws lost ten killed and two captured. Letcher also confirmed reports of the fight of April 1 between Tenth Cavalry troops, under Colonel Brown, with a Villa band at Agua Calientes, in which between thirty and forty outlaws were reported killed.

The consul's report quoted Colonel Brown as saying that for two weeks his command has subsisted largely on beef and corn, but that a mining company had brought in a special train of supplies, including forage, to replenish the American stores.

PLOT TO KILL ALL RULERS OF EUROPE

Chicago State's Attorney Tells of Conspiracy.

Chicago, April 8.—Existence of an international anarchistic plot to assassinate all rulers of Europe has been discovered here, according to a formal statement issued by Macley Hoyne, state's attorney of Cook county.

The alleged plot was unearthed by the state's attorney men while investigating the activities of Jean Crones suspected poisoner of the guests at the banquet in honor of Archbishop Mundelein, a few weeks ago. The state's attorney said a list of proposed assassinations was headed by the czar of Russia and that Emperor William was second on the list.

According to the information which reached the state's attorney the plot was known to anarchists in various cities in America as well as in Europe. One man from each city was believed to have been delegated to the assassinations. Mr. Hoyne said that a written statement had been made to him by an anarchist baring details of the alleged plot.

Officials said the headquarters of the conspirators was in the downtown district and there were branches in other cities. According to Mr. Hoyne's informant the Mundelein banquet poisoning was planned by the group which sought the death of the European rulers. The state's attorney refuses to divulge the identity of the man who revealed the alleged plot and said his investigators were seeking to confirm the statements.

The assassins were to use poison according to the prosecutor's information. Bombs were not to be used unless it was "absolutely necessary," Mr. Hoyne said he was told. The anarchist who supplied the information is not under arrest, but the state's attorney said he could easily reach him.

Contributors to "Conscience Fund."

Washington, April 8.—The treasury department received a contribution to the "conscience fund" of ten pounds ($50) from a woman in Scotland. She wrote that her money was in payment of duties out of which she thought the government had been defrauded more than twenty years ago. The contribution, however, did not represent the full amount of which the government had been defrauded, the woman wrote only a fraction.

Tension Less in Holland.

London, April 8.—The situation in Holland apparently is becoming less tense. Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent says an indication of the change is that officers of the military transportation staff of the state railway will again be granted leave.

Louvain's "Wilson Cafe" Suppressed.

GERMANS PIERCE FRENCH LINE

Furious Night Drive Against Verdun Defences.

GIVES TEUTONS FOOTING

London, April 8.—Following up sharply their capture of the village of Hancourt, in the Avocourt-Bethincourt salient, northwest of Verdun and west of the Meuse, the Germans have shifted their line of attack slightly to the east, driving against the lines between Bethincourt and Chantancourt and penetrating a first line trench there.

The locality is in the vicinity of Dead Man's Hill, where Germans and French have been battling at intervals for weeks for control of dominating positions. Paris declares that the Germans were driven by a large counter attack from the greater part of the captured position, and that they now occupy only some advanced sections along a front of about three hundred yards.

East of the Meuse the French are continuing their nibbling tactics, and report continued progress in German communications trenches southwest of Port Douaumont.

Bethincourt lies about seven miles northwest of Verdun, being the apex of the French salient west of the Meuse.

Infantry assaults preceded and followed furious artillery duels night and day. The Germans are making violent efforts to stem the French advance in the Douaumont region, pouring in fresh troops for support, but have been unable to do so. Infantry fighting has been in progress over the west front in the Verdun sector since the great battle opened forty-seven days ago.

Capture from the British of mine crater positions south of St. Eloi, near Ypres, was announced by German army headquarters. The positions were defended by Canadian troops.

Caillette wood, a small forest northeast of Verdun, for which the French and Germans have been fighting desperately, is now firmly in German hands, says the German war office.

BALLOON TAKES LONG FLIGHT

Pensacola, Fla., April 8.—The big new observation balloon recently brought to the aviation station for use in aerial and water maneuvers by the navy, broke from its moorings in a high wind, rose rapidly and floated away, descending finally at Arroyo, Fla., 100 miles northeast of this city. No one was on board when it escaped.

The balloon was eighty-one feet long and was fully inflated with 25,000 cubic feet of gas when it broke from the ropes with which it had been held to the ground. How it came to get away has not been learned.

The balloon is said to be worth between $50,000 and $60,000. It is virtually new, and was received only a few days ago.

Farmer Has Boat Ready for Forty Days' Cruise to Mount Ararat.

Drayton, N. D., April 8.—John Rul, a farmer living on the Red river, south of here, believes that the present high water in that and other streams in this section is a forerunner of a flood equal to that described in Genesis, and has accordingly built an ark, in which he expects to save himself and family.

A large houseboat, provisioned for forty days, has been constructed and hauled close to the porch of his farmhouse, in order to provide a means of escape from the expected high water.

Coughs Up Dental Bridge.

GERMAN LOSSES AT VERDUN 200,000

Paris Estimates Casualties of Assaulting Army.

Paris, April 8.—The German losses before Verdun up to the present time have reached the huge total of 200,000 men, one of the greatest battle losses in the whole range of warfare, according to estimates made public here from a semi-official source.

"The result of careful inquiry made in the highest quarters in which the figures have been rigorously checked and verified."

The statement recites instances of known regimental and division losses and then says:

"Summarizing during the forty days before February 21 to April 1, the Germans had on the Verdun front from Avocourt to Eparges exactly 225 battalions of infantry, representing a minimum of 1075 companies of infantry besides twenty-three battalions of engineers of three companies each which give an aggregate of 1144 companies fully reinforced, the companies varying from 260 to 280 men. The assaulting army therefore represented at least 295,000 infantry alone."

"Since February 21 the reinforcements have been frequent and heavy. At least eighty battalions have been sent to the rear to be reconstructed. Others have received their reinforcements on the field. It is, therefore, nearly 450,000 infantry which have appeared upon the firing line."

PULLED GUN ON TRAIN

Lancaster Man Tries to Shoot Passengers on Express.

Lancaster, Pa., April 8.—Terror was created among passengers on the Harrisburg express when Richard Gill, of this city, pulled a revolver shortly after the train had left Philadelphia and attempted to shoot several fellow travelers.

After a scuffle he was subdued, but not before he had tried to shoot C. R. Coburn, of Philadelphia, a brakeman. Word was telegraphed ahead and Gill was arrested when the train arrived in Lancaster.

RISKED ALMOST CERTAIN DEATH TO SAVE POSITION

French Hero Hid In Tree and Signaled to His Gunners.

Marcel Marco, who lies in a Paris hospital, wounded all over and horribly burned about the legs, received the French war cross the other day.

When the war broke out Marcel was a strapping, slender as a girl, with beardless face, eyes large and black and hands as white as a woman's. At Verdun the other day he gladly faced almost certain death. He emerged with a body like a sieve, a leg broken above the knee and a hand that was a shapeless mass. His gallantry won him the coveted decoration.

A few hours before the French evacuated one of the hills defending Verdun the commandant of a battalion picked the youngster for a daring mission. The French planned to steal away from the hill silently during the night. Marcel was to stay behind, conceal himself and take special note of the emplacement of enemy artillery when the Germans arrived. Then, when night came, he was to fire off a colored light so the French could get the range of the German battery and destroy it.

Marcel hid in a hollow tree. Through a knothole he watched the arrival of the Germans and the placing of the artillery. At nightfall he crept out, set off a yellow light with his cigarette lighter and dodged back into his tree.

Now he heard loud oaths all about him as Germans searched the woods for the man who set off the light. Then he heard a crackling. They had set the woods on fire to burn him out, as one does a rabbit.

Another sound crashed in his ear. The French were blazing away in response to his signal. The smoke was hurting his eyes. He hoped a shell would end his existence before the flames reached his tree. Then there was an ear splitting bang—the tree fell into a thousand pieces and his light went out.

When he came to he was in a farmhouse. His light had enabled the French to destroy the German battery and recapture the position. They told how they found him unconscious in the burning wood, with the flames licking his legs.

MATOPPO'S SEIZER HELD FOR THREAT

Young Man in Jail Who Single Handed Captured Ship.

PLANNED TO TAKE PANNONIA

He Tells How He Frightened the British Captain and Crew of Fifty-six Into Submission—Chinese Cook Only Person Aboard Who Was Not Afraid, He Says.

Romantic Clarence Reginald Hodson, the poetic looking young man who captured fifty-six men of the British freighter Matoppo off Sandy Hook, is still in jail in New York.

The twenty-three-year-old son of an English father and a German mother, the federal officials of considerable worry by relating that he had captured the Matoppo.

The Pannonia was on her way to New York from London when Hodson and his three associates began to consider the project of slipping aboard the freighter just before she left on a return trip. She departed from London on Feb. 27 and got into New York on March 12.

By this later date, Hodson told Captain Tunney, he had purchased a motorboat, which was to be run over from the ship, where the plotters had headquarters, to the ship. She left for London on March 18.

The four men met in a Twelfth Street room at 11 o'clock on the night of the 17th. That was to be the final meeting before going aboard and it was to be settled whether the four men were to try boarding her from the pier, bringing dynamite with them, or were to bring the explosive from the motorboat and board her from the water.

Decision had been made on one point, that was, to steal the liner's money. Conditions were to determine whether the quartet had taken charge of the vessel, crew and passengers and set the crew and passengers off to sea in small boats, the vessel was to be taken up or permitted to sink.

When Hodson got to the meeting place that night it quickly became apparent to him that two of his hold-forties had lost faith in him and his fellows. They told him the job was a big for them.

His persistence of purpose, so clear, shown by his temporary seizure of the freighter Matoppo, becomes all the more surprising when one has studied the young man. Captain Tunney was amazed when he looked at Hodson, expected to see a husky giant of a man.

He saw a youth not more than five feet ten inches in height and weighing not over 100 pounds. His brown mustache, though well developed, does not conceal in the least an apparent indication of audacity, which his achievement seems to belie.

Soon after he was brought into Captain Tunney's room he betrayed his first for notoriety. By courtesy of the Commissioner Woods some reporters were permitted to question the old prisoner, who welcomed questions from the newspaper men with enthusiasm.

When I held up the captain," he said, "I was as much frightened as he. I guess, but he gave in first. You see, I was very weak. I hadn't had anything to eat for several days. I was the gun up to him, and I waved my hand, but I guess he was too excited to take notice of that. I surrendered very quickly and easily."

It Amused the Chink. The Chinese cook made no longer, as he had learned what the situation was and that only one man had on the ship he came to me and told me he thought what I had done was really funny.

Another amusing thing occurred the day. In the captain's room I saw a big cork. I asked the captain what was for.

"We intended to eat it in celebration of British victories," he said. "Cut it up," I told him. "We'll eat it right in celebration of this German victory." And he and some of the crew ate it. I had some of it too.

Everybody on that ship except the Chinese cook was frightened foolishly on the captain and I went into the mess room we found the operator. I touched him on the shoulder and shouted, "The Germans are here!" The operator woke up and almost fell out of his chair. "I am in charge of this ship," I told him. I handed him the agency fire ax and told him to shut the apparatus. He took the ax, but he was so weak from fear he didn't hold it firmly enough to break the glass. So I grabbed it and smashed it in the room."

TROOPS IN MEXICO TEST NEW DEVICES

Field Kitchens Bake 5,400
Loaves of Bread Daily.

SUBSTITUTE FOOD NEEDED.

Mexicans Charge Enormous Prices For Supplies—Soldiers at the Headquarters Enjoy Swimming in Clear Creek That Flows By—Improvement in Aviation Service.

Establishment of a field bakery on a Mexican plantation near headquarters of the American troops pursuing Pancho Villa has released for other work half a dozen automobiles which have been distributing bread baked on the United States border among the columns of the expedition.

The new field kitchens, comprising two ovens, each nearly the size of a garage, are capable of turning out 5,400 one-pound loaves of bread a day. A one-pound loaf of army bread is a day's ration for a soldier in the field. It is about the size of a derby hat, but not so symmetrical.

The bread baked at the new ovens is from native Mexican flour, the first obtained by the expeditionary columns. The ovens were made of native brick and adobe mud. Each oven has a large firebox, inclosed on all sides by very thick brick and mud walls. A wood fire is built in this box, burning for about an hour, until the temperature is about 600 degrees.

Whatever the outcome of the chase it is evident that the army in Mexico under General Pershing is getting an actual test of the military inventions under service conditions.

More than one type of motor truck is in use among the fifty-four machines of this class doing transport duty. These trucks are under test in a country without roads, where hill and mountain climbing on rocky trails is necessary if the army is to subsist. The big trucks not only have done all expected of them, but in several respects they have outdone the famous lighter makes of automobiles in piecemeal under different conditions.

Work in Aviation Service. The aviation service is working under conditions calculated to bring out sharply every necessity which may be considered in increasing the aeroplane establishment. The army in the field already has met the problem of living in a country which is practically without salt. Even the scanty food supplies which were anticipated in the devastated Chihuahua districts have not all materialized. Most of the available pork, for example, has been found infected with trichina. These and other incidents have complicated an already difficult transportation situation, throwing the army upon its own resources to work out quick substitutes for the ordinary means of subsistence.

Practically, however, it is understood that the field forces by hard work, endurance of the cavalrymen and horses and the remarkable marching powers displayed by the infantrymen have made up for a considerable part of this handicap. Adaptability of the troops to emergencies displayed under the tests of this campaign has furnished many practical object lessons as to the length to which American armies can be driven on forced marches without loss of organization or danger to the men. These troops made record marches during their first day out; but, according to the reports reaching here and the evident physical hardiness of the men in the base camps, the men are in condition not only to repeat but to exceed their past performances.

Humor in Camp Life. In spite of campaign hardships the camp life in Mexico is beginning to produce its round of humorous soldier stories. A Chinese laundryman, a resident of Mexico, establishing his business near a large camp, proceeded to attempt to build his shack over and around the army telephone wire. He intended to use the wire to hang clothes on. An officer stopped him before the shack was up.

Duck shooters and other sportsmen along the 250 miles of line communication have disturbed the peck train teamsters, who have tried to spread rumors that the sportsmen were at the least hostile armies. However, staff officers after investigation found that neither the supplies of game nor the teamsters had been menaced. One of the infantry regiments went on a rabbit drive near a camp, obtaining nearly a rabbit per man.

During the rest hours in camp among the soldiers hardly a word of discussion about the significance of this Mexican expedition is heard. The officers, however, discussed the Mexican situation guardedly from many angles, but all of those in camp were outspoken about one desire—namely, to hurry southward.

The men have stopped using the creek water and obtain water from shallow wells dug since the base was established. The change was not made on account of fears of the purity of the creek water, but for convenience. The clear creek with the rocks at the bottom showing beneath a considerable depth of water has been a constant temptation to the men of all commands for swimming. Now each organization has a swimming hole, where all day long yells induced by icy plunges are heard and where there is a constant line of men attending to their daily clothes wash.

HUGHES THE MOST POPULAR

Meeting Between Colonel and Root Did Much to Bring the Old Guard and the Progressive Wings of the Party Together—Expected That Roosevelt Will Forgive Others.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.
Washington, April 8.—[Special.]—The prominence of the Roosevelt candidacy may force the anti-Roosevelt men in the Republican party to rally around some other one candidate in order to prevent the nomination of Roosevelt at Chicago.

The trouble they have thus far experienced is in rallying around any particular man. Of course Hughes is the real possibility, but there are a great many men who do not want either Hughes or Roosevelt and who say they prefer Roosevelt to Hughes if they have to make a choice.

The Partial Forgiveness. There is no doubt that the meeting between Roosevelt and Root threw a great scare into everybody who truly does not want Roosevelt to come back, and it caused the real Roosevelt men much elation. If Roosevelt can forgive Root, who presided both as temporary and permanent chairman over the convention in which he claimed to have been robbed of so many delegates, then he will be able to forgive many others who opposed him four years ago. But it will be found that his forgiveness will not go to the extent of accepting them as president.

Like the men who bolted Bryan in 1896 and by Bryan were made forever ineligible as presidential nominees of the Democratic party, so the men who took a prominent part in the defeat of Roosevelt at Chicago will not have a clean bill of health from T. R. for the presidency. The reconciliation did not mean that Roosevelt would support Root for president, but it might have meant that Root would be permitted to support Roosevelt for that office.

The Great Prejudice. We have begun to hear something more about the "great prejudice" existing in this country against taking a man from the supreme bench and making him a presidential candidate. Later this talk comes from Democrats who acknowledge that Hughes might make it difficult for the Democrats to win. "We do not want to see the supreme court made the hotbed of politics," one of the able Democrats said.

The political decisions of the supreme court, such as the Dred Scott decision, the greenback decisions, the insular decisions, the lottery decisions and the income tax decision are thus recalled. They were not all party political decisions. Some of them were expediency decisions, but party politics has played a great part in the supreme court, even when there was no talk of taking one of its members for the presidency.

Patronage Disclosures. During the criticism of a certain fund which it was said was being used to get employees in the government service without recourse to the civil service regulations Gardner of Massachusetts asked:

"How did that provision get into the law?"

"I drafted it myself," replied Bennett of New York, who was the chief critic. "I once got an employee in without passing the civil service," said Gardner, and I rather liked that."

"Yes," replied Bennett. "Under this provision you got not one, but two, and your father-in-law got two more."

Socialistic Logic. Congressman London, the Socialist, talked thus about the pursuit of Villa when he got the floor for a short time one day: "You cannot chase a bandit with an army of 50,000 men, just as you cannot use a locomotive to chase a bird. Within a few weeks we will find our army deep in the territory of Mexico and the people of Mexico rallying around the bandit as a patriot."

What to Do With $40,000,000. During the discussion of the river and harbor bill, which carries $40,000,000, no one has suggested that the best use that could be made of that vast sum would be to improve the terminal and harbor arrangements around the Atlantic seaboard so that freights would not be so congested. The expenditure of these large amounts for rivers and harbors is supposed to be for the purpose of benefiting commerce, but no greater benefit could be afforded commerce than to remove the great cause of congestion at the seaboard.

Pension Legislation. There seems to have been a truce arranged in regard to pension legislation and the pension bills are passed without any objection. The southern men who fought pensions so earnestly a short time ago have all subsided. Their northern associates have persuaded them that it is not good policy just as a campaign is approaching, and so the bills come in and pass as a matter of course. The old soldier is being cared for in these bills, but no one seems to begrudge a pension to any man who fought in the civil war.

Too Much Speed. Saying, "De man who prides himself on saying 'what he thinks,' says Uncle Eben. 'Is mighty liable to put too much speed on de sayin' an' not 'nuf power on de thinkin'."

WHAT CAN WE DRINK?

Danger, Danger, Everywhere, Says Chicago Health Commissioner.

"What can a fellow drink?" The question is Health Commissioner John Dill Robertson's, and suggestions are in order. Here is the way he states the problem in the latest issue of the health bulletin:

"If whiskey inflames the stomach, beer produces Bright's disease, brandy hardens the liver, Burgundy brings on gout, alcohols destroy the brain, typhoid lurks in water and interlopes in milk, what can a fellow drink?"

"The following observations on booze also appear in the bulletin:

"A jag is like a new eight passenger car—to poor man has a right to one."

"To the scrap heap with personal liberty if wife and child are to be deprived so that a week's wages can be blown in on booze."

"To uncork a bottle of booze tonight may mean breakfast cooked tomorrow morning on an alcohol lamp."

TO GRADE SING SING'S 1,500.

Kirchwey's Survey Will Precede Plan For Aiding Convicts.

Warden Kirchwey of Sing Sing prison, officers of the Mutual Welfare league announce, is planning to make a physical, mental and vocational survey of the 1,500 inmates confined there. He has divided the inmates into three classes, the mentally defective, comprising 25 per cent; the impulsive criminals, mostly first offenders, making another 25 per cent, and the hardened criminals or old timers, who make up the remaining 50 per cent.

It is proposed to provide medical treatment for the mentally defective, while for the old offenders it is the warden's plan to teach them useful trades.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck.

CHAPTER II—On his return Bibbs is met at the station by his sister Edith.

CHAPTER III—He finds himself in an uncomfortable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. He sees Mary Vertrees looking at him from a summer house next door.

CHAPTER IV—The vertrees, old town family and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and afterward discuss them. Mary puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys.

CHAPTER V—At the Sheridan house-warming banquet Sheridan spreads himself. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attention, and Bibbs hears he is to be sent back to the machine shop.

CHAPTER VI—Mary tells her mother about the banquet and shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial prospect.

CHAPTER VII—Sheridan tells Bibbs he must be back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write.

CHAPTER VIII—Edith and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bibbs. Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Bibbs from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone.

CHAPTER IX—Bibbs has a sudden break to his father the news of Jim's broken death.

CHAPTER X—All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her.

CHAPTER XII.

Bibbs went home pondering. He did not understand why Sibyl had laughed. At home, uncles, aunts and cousins from out of town were wandering about the house, several mournfully adding the "Ray of Naples," and others occupied with the Moor and the plumb line while they waited for trains. Edith and her mother had retired to some upper fastness, but Bibbs interviewed Jackson and had the various groups of relatives summoned to the dining room for food. One great-uncle, old Gideon Sheridan from Booneville, had been found and Bibbs went in search of him. He ransacked the house, discovering the missing antique at last by accident. Passing his father's closed door on tiptoe, Bibbs heard a murmured sound, and paused to listen. The sound proved to be a quavering and rickety voice, monotonously bleating:

"The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away! We got to remember that! We got to remember that! I'm a-gittin' along, James! I'm a-gittin' along, and I've seen a many of 'em go—two daughters and a son the Lord gave me, and he has taken all away. For the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away! Remember the words of Biddad the Shubite, James. Biddad the Shubite says, 'He shall have neither son nor nephew among his people, nor any remaining in his dwellings.' Biddad the Shubite—"

Bibbs opened the door softly. His father was lying upon the bed, in his underclothes, face downward, and Uncle Gideon sat near by, swinging backward and forward in a rocking chair, stroking his long, white beard and gazing at the ceiling as he talked. Bibbs beckoned him urgently, but Uncle Gideon paid no attention.

"Biddad the Shubite spoke and he says, 'If thy children have sinned against him and he have cast them away—'"

There was a muffled explosion beneath the floor, and the windows rattled. The figure lying face downward on the bed did not move, but Uncle Gideon leaped from his chair. "My God!" he cried. "What's that?"

There came a second explosion, and Uncle Gideon ran out into the hall. Bibbs went to the head of the great staircase, and, looking down, discovered the source of the disturbance. Gideon's grandson, a boy of fourteen, had brought his camera to the funeral and was taking "flashlights" of the Moor. Uncle Gideon, reassured by Bibbs' explanation, would have returned to finish his quotation from Biddad the Shubite, but Bibbs detained him, and after a little argument persuaded him to descend to the dining room whither Bibbs followed, after closing the door of his father's room.

He kept his eyes on Gideon after dinner, diplomatically preventing several attempts on the part of that comforter to reascend the stairs; and it was a relief to Bibbs when George announced that an automobile was waiting to convey the ancient man and his grandson to their train. They were the last to leave, and when they had gone Bibbs went sighing to his own room.

He stretched himself wearily upon the bed, but presently rose, went to the window, and looked for a long time at the darkened house where Mary Vertrees lived. Then he opened his trunk, took therefrom a small notebook half filled with fragmentary scribbles, and began to write:

"Laughter after a funeral. In this revision people will laugh at anything and at nothing. The hand plays a dirge on the way to the cemetery, but when it turns back, and the mourning carriages are out of hearing, it strikes up, 'Darkness Is Out Tonight.' That is natural—"

"My God!" He cried, "What's That?"

For there are moments when laughter is like the whirling of whips. . . . Beauty is not out of place among grave-stones. It is not out of place anywhere. But a woman who has been betrothed to a man would not look beautiful at his funeral! A woman might look beautiful, though, at the funeral of a man whom she had known and liked. And in that case, too, she would probably not want to talk if she drove home from the cemetery with her brother, nor would she want the brother to talk. . . . Nevertheless, too much silence is open to suspicion. It may be reticence, or it may be a vacuum. It may be dignity, or it may be false teeth. . . . Silence can be golden? Yes, but perhaps if a woman of the world should and herself by accident sitting beside a man for the length of time it must necessarily take two slow old horses to jog three miles, she might expect that man to say something of some sort! If he did not even try, but sat every step of the way as dumb as a frozen fish, she might think him a frozen fish. And she might be right. She might be right, if she thought him about as pleasant a companion as Biddad the Shubite!

Bibbs closed his notebook, replacing it in his trunk. Then, after a period of melancholy contemplation, he undressed, put on a dressing gown and slippers, and went softly into the hall—to his father's door. Upon the floor was a tray which Bibbs had sent George, earlier in the evening, to place upon a table in Sheridan's room—but the food was untouched. Bibbs stood listening outside the door for several minutes. There came no sound from within, and he went back to his own room and to bed.

In the morning he woke to a state of being hitherto unknown in his experience. Sometimes in the process of waking there is a little pause—sleep has gone, but coherent thought has not begun. It is the moment, as we say, before we "remember," and for the first time in Bibbs' life it came to him bringing a vague happiness. However, it was a brief visitation and was gone before he had finished dressing. It left a little trail, the pleased recollection of it and the puzzle of it, which remained unsolved. And, in fact, waking happily in the morning is not usually the result of a drive home from a funeral. No wonder the sequence evaded Bibbs Sheridan!

His father had gone when he came downstairs. "Went on down to 's office, jes' same," Jackson informed him. "Come sat breakfast table, all by 'myself; eat nothin'. George bring me breakfast, but he din' eat a thing. Yessuh, went on down town, jes' same he yooosta do. Yessuh, I reckon putty much ev'rythin' gone on same as it yooosta do."

It struck Bibbs that Jackson was right. The day passed as other days had passed. Mrs. Sheridan and Edith were in black, and Mrs. Sheridan cried a little, now and then, but no other external difference was to be seen. Bibbs went for his drive, and his mother went with him, as she sometimes did when the weather was pleasant. Altogether, the usualness of things was rather startling to Bibbs.

During the drive Mrs. Sheridan talked fragmentarily of Jim's childhood. "But you wouldn't remember that," she said, after narrating an episode. "You were too little. He was always a good boy, just like that. And he'd save whatever papa gave him, and put it in the bank. I reckon I'll just about kill your father to put somebody in his place as president of the Realty company. Bibbs, I know he can't move Roscoe over; he told me last week he'd already put as much on Roscoe as any one man could handle and not go crazy. Oh, it's a pity—"

She stopped to wipe her eyes. "It's a pity you didn't run more with Jim. Bibbs, and kind of pick up his ways. Think what it'd mean to papa now. You never did run with either Roscoe or Jim any even before you got sick—"

Laughter after a funeral. In this revision people will laugh at anything and at nothing. The hand plays a dirge on the way to the cemetery, but when it turns back, and the mourning carriages are out of hearing, it strikes up, 'Darkness Is Out Tonight.' That is natural—"

been' brothers like that. I don't believe I ever saw you and Jim sit down together for a good talk in my life. "Mother, I've been away so long," Bibbs returned, gently. "And since I came home I— He was busy, you see, and I hadn't much to say about the things that interested him, because I don't know much about them."

"It's a pity! Oh, it's a pity!" she moaned. "And you'll have to learn to know about 'em now, Bibbs. I haven't said much to you, because I felt it was all between your father and you, but I honestly do believe it will just kill him if he has to have any more trouble on top of all this! You mustn't let him, Bibbs—you mustn't! You don't know how he's grieved over you, and now he can't stand any more—he just can't! Whatever he says for you to do, you do it. Bibbs, you do it! I want you to promise me you will."

"I would if I could," he said, sorrowfully. "No, no! Why can't you?" she cried, clutching his arm. "He wants you to go back to the machine shop and all on earth he asks is for you to go back in a cheerful spirit, so it won't hurt you! That's all he asks. Look, Bibbs, we're gettin' back near home, but before we get there I want you to promise me that you'll do what he asks you to. Promise me!"

In her earnestness she cleared away her black veil that she might see him better, and it blew out on the smoky wind. He readjusted it for her before he spoke.

"I'll go back in as cheerful a spirit as I can, mother," he said.

"There!" she exclaimed, satisfied. "That's a good boy! That's all I wanted you to say."

"Don't give me any credit," he said ruefully. "There isn't anything else for me to do."

"No, don't begin talkin' that way!" "No, no," he soothed her. "We'll have to begin to make the spirit a cheerful one. We may—" They were turning into their own driveway as he spoke, and he glanced at the old house next door. Mary Vertrees was visible in the twilight, standing upon the front steps, bareheaded, the door open behind her. She bowed gravely.

"We may—what?" asked Mrs. Sheridan, with a slight impatience. "What is it mother?"

"Of all the queer boys!" she cried. "You always were. Always! You haven't forgot what you just promised me, have you?"

"No," he answered, as the car stopped. "No, the spirit will be as cheerful as the flesh will let it, mother. It won't do to behave like—"

His voice was low, and in her movement to descend from the car she failed to hear his final words.

"Behave like who, Bibbs?" "Nothing."

But she was fretful in her grief. "You said it wouldn't do to behave like somebody. Behave like who?"

"It was just nonsense," he explained, turning to go in. "An obscure person I don't think much of lately."

"Behave like who?" she repeated, and upon his yielding to her petulant insistence, she made up her mind that the only thing to do was to tell Dr. Gurney about it.

"Like Biddad the Shubite!" was what Bibbs said.

GERMANY REPLIES TO U-BOAT QUERY

Foreign Office Makes Preliminary Answer.

U. S. READY FOR BREAK

Only Action of Berlin Which Will Meet American Views Can Prevent Severing of Diplomatic Relations.

Berlin, April 8.—The foreign office delivered to Ambassador Gerard a preliminary answer to the American inquiries concerning the case of the ships sunk or attacked. The nature of the answer is not yet known.

Ambassador Gerard does not believe the German-American situation is serious.

In spite of reports received here through English sources, Germany the ambassador believes, will meet America with complete willingness to settle any question regarding the rates of the five ships not at issue.

Doctor Hecksher, of the reichstag foreign relations committee, said that the whole tone of the reichstag, which was formerly anti-American, has changed since the chancellor's speech on Wednesday.

"Where Germany shows her good will toward America as she does to day, an adjustment of any difficulties is certain," said Doctor Hecksher.

Officials generally believe that in the present storm is weathered all dangers of a diplomatic break with the United States will have passed.

The demands of the United States upon Germany, however, were attacked in the reichstag yesterday. Herr Payer, a Progressive, declared that all Germany wanted from America was justice. Herr Stresemann, a Liberal, said that the interpretation of neutrality as conceived by the United States was much different from the German viewpoint. He declared that it was unjust to ask Germany to allow armed merchant ships to sail through the war zone waters unharmed.

Ready to Break Relations.

Washington, April 8.—The United States is ready to break all diplomatic relations with Germany.

Only action by the German government, which will meet the views of the administration regarding the conduct of the submarine warfare, can prevent this action. At the cabinet meeting, it is understood, an agreement was reached that the time for temporizing had passed.

As an evidence of the gravity with which the situation is considered by administration leaders it is understood that a tentative plan of procedure has been mapped out. It is as follows:

On receipt of the complete proof gathered by Americans in France and England dealing with the Sussex and the general destruction of unarmed neutral and belligerent vessels, the president will ask for a joint session of congress.

He will present to it his conclusions as based on the evidence in his possession that American rights have been invaded and solemn pledges violated.

He will then ask that congress authorize him to take such steps as may be required to maintain the integrity of the United States. In his connection the president will make it plain that, while he believes that he has full authority to break diplomatic relations with Germany, he desires that congress show that it stands squarely behind him.

NOTE TELLS SUICIDE PACT

Man's Body Found and River Being Drugged for Girl's Corpse.

Pottsville, Pa., April 8.—A tin can found in the Schuylkill at Reading contained a note purporting to be written by Clayton Mengel, of Schuylkill Haven, saying that he and Miss Helen Hepler, of Cressona, intended to commit suicide, and that their bodies would be found in the Schuylkill.

The body of Mengel was found Wednesday. The state police and others, dragging the river, have failed to find the girl's body.

Investigating "Beef Trust."

Washington, April 8.—A new "beef trust" investigation is being made by the department of justice, it was learned. Information laid before the department by members of congress induced Attorney General Gregory, it is stated, to order a quiet inquiry to determine what meat packers of the United States are violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

"Under Secretary of State."

Washington, April 8.—The title, under secretary of state, for the counselor of the state department, who ranks next to the secretary, is proposed in the new legislative appropriation bill reported to the senate. Several years ago the proposal raised much opposition and was abandoned.

To Make Dodd Brigadier General. Washington, April 8.—Representative Klees, of Pennsylvania, introduced in the house a resolution to promote Colonel George A. Dodd, hero of the first encounter between American troops and Villista to be a brigadier general.

Chicken Most Desired.

No amount of sentiment will make the first robin as welcome as the first spring chicken.

GERMANS EXECUTE WOMAN

Alleged Head of Information Bureau for Allies Put to Death.

Amsterdam, April 8.—The assertion is made by the Echo Beige that Miss Gabrielle Peit, of Molenbeek, Belgium, has been put to death by Germans after trial by court-martial on a charge of treason.

It is alleged she conducted an information bureau in the interest of Germany's enemies.

The newspaper also states that Louise de Bettignies, of Lille, has been sentenced to death, but that the sentence has been commuted to imprisonment for life.

Another woman, Marie von Houtte, the newspaper says, has been sentenced to imprisonment for fifteen years.

URGE PENSION FOR POSTMEN

Forty Congressmen Ask House Committee to Report Bill.

Washington, April 8.—Forty congressmen urged the house postal committee to report the Griffin bill for annual pensions of $900 to superannuated postal employees.

"We shut our eyes and pass sixteen millions for a battleship that won't last sixteen minutes after some submarine operator gets his eyes on it," said Representative Taggart, Democrat, of Kansas, "and then we knock a poor $900 clerk off the rolls while some one stamps his cowhide and shouts 'economy!'"

LINER-TRANSPORT SIMLA TORPEDOED

Eleven Members of Crew Perish in Disaster.

London, April 8.—The Peninsular and Oriental line steamship Simla, which was taken over by the government last November, has been sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean. Eleven members of the crew, all Asiatics, were drowned. All others on board were saved.

A despatch received by the Daily Mail, referring to the sinking of a "transport," is believed to refer to the Simla.

The Danish steamship St. Jerneborg has been torpedoed off Cagliari. The crew was saved.

The British steamship Vesuvio has been sunk. Three injured survivors have been landed. The vessel was unarmed.

Lloyd's announces that the French sailing vessel St. Hubert has been torpedoed and may become a derelict. Her crew was rescued.

A despatch to Lloyd's states that a Dutch steamship, Fendijk, 3048 tons, bound from Baltimore to Rotterdam, passed St. Catharine in tow. The nature of the accident to the ship is not known.

Capture by a German torpedo boat of the Swedish steamship Vega, from Stockholm for Copenhagen, is reported. The Swedish government has protested against the capture and demanded release of the ship.

Russians Closing in on Trebizond. Petrograd, April 8.—Russian troops are now advancing on the Turkish Black Sea port of Trebizond from both the east and south, according to official despatches received here. In an engagement south of Trebizond the Turks were driven out of fortified positions which were occupied by the Russians.

LANSLING TO BE PRESIDENT; BUT FOR ONLY A SINGLE DAY

Inauguration Day Falls on Sunday, and New Oath Will Be Taken Monday.

The assistant secretary of the United States senate declares that, no matter who may be elected president next fall, the chief executive of the nation from noon on March 4 till noon March 5 next year is likely to be Robert Lansing, provided he remains at the head of the cabinet. This is based on the assumption that the president elect does not privately take his oath of office.

The 4th day of next March happens to come on Sunday. According to precedent in such cases, the newly elected president is not inaugurated till about noon of the succeeding day. This leaves a lapse between the expiration of one presidential term and the beginning of the next.

Mr. Lansing would be the only secretary of state ever to attain this distinction. It will not, however, be the first time that a man elected neither president nor vice president has stepped into the presidency "for a day."

March 4, 1849, fell on Sunday. At that time the official next in order for the presidency after the vice president was the president pro tem of the senate, according to the law of succession enacted in 1792 but later repealed. David Rice Atchison, senator from Missouri, happened to be president pro tem, and he became chief executive of the United States for twenty-four hours.

Senator Atchison was thereafter fond of urging jokingly his claim of being the twelfth president of the United States. He claimed to be the only president from a state west of the Mississippi, the one whose term of office was shortest and the only one who never signed an official document as such.

In 1821 and again in 1877 inauguration day fell on Sunday, but in each case the president elect took a private oath of office, obviating the necessity of another's serving as "president for a day." The plan might, of course, be repeated in 1925.

Discovering a Friend

If sorrow never happened and trouble never came
The only thing you'd know about your neighbor is his name.
If all your days were bright and fair and certain was your place
You'd only know a fellow by the features of his face.
Acquaintances upon this earth are all you'd ever know
If care had always passed you by and grief you'd never know.

Time was I used to nod to one who lived across the way.
I knew his name, and he knew mine. We passed the time of day.
But nothing did he mean to me and nothing I to him.
Until one morning sorrow came and all my world was grim.
I saw his face, I felt his hand and knew he'd come to lend.
The strength I needed, and right then I found I had a friend.

'Tis not in sunshine friends are made, but when our shades are gray.
The splendid souls that men possess are never on display.
We cannot tell what lies behind the busy nod or smile.
Nor what of worth will come from it in just a little while.
We only know that when we face the cares that life must send
We realize the passerby has changed into a friend.

VILLA SHAVES MUSTACHE.

Prized Adornment Gone So as to Prevent Recognition.

Francisco Villa has shaved his mustache to prevent ready recognition should he be captured by the American troops, according to Robert Wright, a civilian chauffeur, who arrived at the military base in Columbus from Casas Grandes. Wright said he had obtained his information from a Mexican who had been among those forced to join Villa's band at El Valle, but who later escaped.

American army officers here who have had dealings with the bandit point out that Villa's mustache was his prized adornment and that Villa, the most photographed Mexican factional leader, always insisted upon it being properly carried before posing for the camera.

New Sandwich Fillings.

ACQUACATE, OR ALLIGATOR PEAR FILLING.—Halve, pare and slice a large alligator pear. Mash fine with a silver fork, season with pepper, salt and lemon juice; then spread thin on silver bread rounds lightly buttered and lay on the sandwiches.

Cocunut Filling.—Add to a full half cupful of freshly grated cocunut a half cupful of whipped cream, a tablespoonful of cherry syrup and a teaspoonful of chopped harricot leaves. Mix lightly and lay on the sandwiches with thin rice bread slices.

Nasturtium Filling.—A small bottle of pickled nasturtium seeds, drain and chop; then add them to a small can of tuna fish that have been flaked. Add mayonnaise enough to make a spreading paste and lay up the sandwiches on whole wheat slices cut thin and sparingly buttered.

Brazil Nut Filling.—Peel and then steam three ripe bananas, mash them and add six salted Brazil nuts finely chopped, a tablespoonful of cherry syrup and a tablespoonful of whipped cream. If the paste is not quite soft enough add a little more cream; then lay on thinly sliced brown bread rounds.

Onion Filling.—Spread thinly with pate de foie gras slices of whole wheat bread, then cover with thinly sliced Spanish onion, dust with red pepper and lay up the sandwiches. The spreading paste takes the place of the butter and makes the sandwiches very tasty.

Cranberry Spread.—Roll two cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of cranberry juice five minutes, add one tablespoonful of butter, the strained juice of one lemon and a grating of nutmeg. Boil down till the consistency of jelly and serve between slices of whole wheat bread.

CUTTING A TEN-THOUSANDTH OF AN INCH

The Laboratory has become absolutely essential to the proper diagnosis of certain diseases. Modern scientific medicine is based to a large extent upon the results of laboratory work. Both the patients and the physicians in small towns would suffer severely if the State had not come to their aid and established a modern laboratory for the benefit of the practitioners and their patients.

Both the lack of experience in laboratory technique and the means to properly equip a laboratory would make it out of the question for the majority of doctors to supply individual service of this character.

The above picture shows one of the delicate instruments required in a modern laboratory. It is called the microtome and is used for cutting thin slices of tissue from specimens in order that they may be examined under the microscope. These specimens are first embedded in paraffin in order to give them body while they are being cut.

For ordinary purposes these tissue sections are cut from two to three ten thousandths of an inch in thickness. This instrument is so delicately adjusted, however, that it is possible to cut a much finer section than this.

In order to handle these specimens they are floated in warm water. A glass slide is slipped under them and they are thus picked up, stained or otherwise prepared for examination, and finally covered with a second thin piece of glass which makes it possible to handle them under the microscope without difficulty.

A Joke That Miscarried

By ETHEL HOLMES

Jim and John Emerson, twin brothers, dressed alike as they looked alike. They wore their beards alike, and their voices were as nearly the same as two violins. They were married on the same day and went to live in twin houses in Atherton terrace. Every one said that there was nothing unlike about the brothers except their wives.

One day while they were lunching together at the Downtown club they concluded to swap wives for dinner. Jim was to go home to John's house, pretending to be John, and vice versa. The pretense, if successful, was to last till coffee was brought on, when John and his brother's wife were to go into Jim's and all have coffee together and laugh over what had taken place.

When John Emerson, personating Jim, went to Jim's house that afternoon shortly before the dinner hour he received the comical kiss from his brother's wife, and, so far as he could discover, she thought him her husband. "Any letters?" he asked casually.

"Yes," she said, handing him one addressed in a feminine hand, while she looked up into his face as he read the superscription.

John was somewhat taken aback. He did not know whether the epistle was one his brother would wish his wife to see or not. Giving it a casual glance, he put it in his coat pocket unopened and asked if the wife had spent the day pleasantly.

Mrs. Jim did not ask when he had pocketed a letter in which she was deeply interested who was the writer, for she had studied the handwriting on the envelope and could not make out that it belonged to any woman she knew, but her replies to John's remarks were not cordial, and it was evident that there was something on her mind. John endeavored to appear unconcerned, but he was obliged to admit that the letter incident had caused an unfortunate turn in his and his brother's joke.

The more John tried to placate his sister-in-law the more unplaced she became. By the time the dessert came on the table she was sitting bolt upright in her chair looking very crusty.

Meanwhile her husband was dining with his brother's wife, Jim, who was an excellent business man, had made money, while John, whose tastes were artistic, had not. Mrs. John was economical, and her principal business was to keep her husband from spending more than his limited income warranted. It had occurred to Jim that this occasion would be a good one to make his sister-in-law a present. So on his way to dinner he stopped at a jeweler's and bought a brooch, for which he paid $50. After receiving the homecoming kiss he drew the box containing his gift, opened it and held the brooch before the lady's eyes.

"See what I have brought you, dear," Mrs. Emerson's brows lowered. Instead of putting her coral fingers on the brooch she pushed it away from her.

"Why in the world did you spend money for that trinket when I have all I can do to make ends meet without it? Tomorrow morning you take it right back and leave it where you got it."

Poor Jim looked very much disgruntled. He could not confess that he was her brother-in-law instead of her husband and that it was pure gain to her. He stammered an apology, put the brooch in his pocket, adding that he "was very sorry," and took up the evening paper. Fortunately dinner was announced, and he hoped to get through it without anything more disagreeable than what had already happened.

Thus the joke that was intended to be a pleasant one, to be laughed over after dinner, miscarried. John had a letter in his pocket that he dared not open for fear of compromising his brother, and Jim stood accused of wasteful extravagance. All through the dinner Jim's sister-in-law was declaiming against his want of ability to keep within bounds. It was no excuse whatever that he had intended the gift for her. A gift that troubled her to pay for by skimping was no gift at all. Indeed, it was a detriment.

About 7:30 by the clock Jim Emerson was called to the telephone.

"Is that you, Jim?"

"Yes."

"There's been a fiasco here."

"There's been one here too."

"The trouble is a letter received by the morning mail addressed to you in a woman's handwriting."

"The trouble here is that I brought your wife a fifty dollar brooch as a gift purporting to come from you and have been abused for extravagance."

"Tell her the truth and come over at once."

In a few minutes Jim and Mrs. John entered Jim's own house. Mrs. John was smiling. Mrs. Jim was like a thunder-bolt. Jim asked his brother for the letter, opened it and read aloud:

Trusting to interest you in the cause of votes for women, I venture to address you—

Further reading was interrupted by a burst of laughter by three of the party, and Jim, approaching his wife, took her in his arms.

"It seems to me," said Mrs. John, "that I am the only gainer by this stupid joke."

"I'll trouble you, Jim," said his wife, "for a brooch to match the one you've given Sattie."

Defined.

What is your idea of a grouch? A fellow who wouldn't thank you if you scratched his back.
